

HONORS COLLEGE FERPA INFORMATION RELEASE FORM

Granting Access to a Student's Educational Record

The University of Maryland adheres to a federal policy of compliance with the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA) or Buckley Amendment that protects the privacy of student education records. It is the policy of the University (1) to permit students to inspect their educational records, (2) to limit disclosure to others of personally identifiable information from the education record without student's prior written consent, and (3) to provide students the opportunity to seek correction of their education record where appropriate. Details of the law are available on the website of the Office of the Registrar (<http://registrar.umd.edu/current/Policies/FERPA.html>).
