EXETER
COLLEGE
OXFORD

A six-week international summer programme (2nd July - 12th August 2017)

The six-week Summer Programme at Exeter College, Oxford is a unique opportunity to experience the collegiate, discussion-based, research-enriched life of an undergraduate at the oldest university in the English-speaking world.

Defining the pace and style of the Programme are 80 hours of lectures, seminars and tutorials. The tutorial system, one of the key strengths of an Oxford undergraduate education, brings students together with faculty in individual tutorials and small seminars. Such teaching ensures students get direct, expert guidance as they undertake in-depth study in a chosen area of research. Courses are cross-disciplinary and offered in the arts and humanities, social science, maths, engineering and science, providing opportunities to work towards major and minor degree requirements, or to try something new.

Collegiate life will revolve around the Cohen Quadrangle, Exeter's newest campus (2016), and the historic Turl Street site (1315). Summer Programme students will live in the Cohen Quadrangle in single, en suite rooms and enjoy its state-of-the-art modern facilities. You will also be welcomed into Turl Street to stroll in the historic and tranquil gardens and courtyards and to take part in the ancient Oxford tradition of formal dining with fellow students and faculty.

A team of current Oxford students will organise a busy and varied social calendar of extra-curricular and cross-cultural activities, typically including: architectural and literary tours of the University and its constituent colleges, practical city guides, visits to the University's best museums and libraries, sports activities, talent shows, picnics, Shakespeare plays performed in college gardens, quiz nights, afternoon tea, punting on the River Cherwell and trips to nearby towns and places of interest (e.g. Woodstock, with its famous Blenheim Palace, and Stratford-upon-Avon, with its Shakespeare Memorial Theatre).

Exeter maintains regular and on-going contact with its former students. Summer Programme students will be warmly welcomed into the College community and into its alumni network.

Exeter invites applications from students in full-time higher education with a cumulative GPA of 3.3, or equivalent. Exeter operates a rolling admissions process, so early application is recommended.
